THE LOST ARTS.

Many Abandoned Because New Knowledge Makes Them Useless.

Not as much as we used to, but occasionally even yet, one hears of some wonder accomplished by the ancients which cannot be done now.

Not so many years ago it was quite commonly asserted that modern workmen could not quarry or, having quarried, could not handle stones as large as the monoliths of Egypt. And the writer has heard a public speaker of note assert that it would be impossible to handle with modern implements such large stones as were used in the pyramids or to join them as perfectly as they are joined there. Yet, when occasion arose, larger stones than any of the larger monoliths themselves were transported not only to the sea, but across it, and erected in England, France and America, and there are individuals today who might, if they chose, cause the transportation to and erection in this country of the largest pyramids or build new ones ten times larger and more durable. Pyramids are not being generally built nowadays because they are not in line with the trend of modern ambition; that's all.

It is very doubtful if a "Damascus blade" would stand half as severe usage as a modern band saw blade or even as much as the spring of a forty cent clock, while the ornamentalities of those wondrous blades, so far as the mechanical execution is concerned, can be excelled by apprentices and amateurs of today.

Of the "lost art" of hardening copper little is heard of late years, though one occasionally hears a wisefellow from the wilds wish that he knew how to do it as well as the ancients, and while it is perhaps regrettable that he doesn't his ignorance is his own fault.

Many arts and devices have been abandoned because new knowledge has made them useless, and time spent in rediscovering them would be worse than wasted. The modern youth had much better spend his time studying the art of his contemporaries than that which is "lost."—Scientific American.

DON'T GET RUSTY.

Keep Your Moral, Mental and Physical Machinery Working.

The machine that lies idle is far more liable to injury than the machine that runs.

Air and dampness do more damage than wear and tear. Let the machine remain inactive awhile, and the coating formed by the corrosion soon covers the bright metal and the parts become stiff and cranky.

A man neglects the working parts of his body. Normally these parts should be exercised. He indulges his members in idleness. Whatever vitality and working force they may have had when in continued use, neglect causes the machinery to run stiffly. It is the rust.

A man may neglect to exercise his working brain forces. He may have ever so quick a mind, but if he does not use his mental machinery the rust of idleness is soon over it.

A man may neglect to use the moral forces that are in him. There is a weakening somewhere. The machine lets down. And soon the parts are rusted.

When the primary or the convention or the ballot box, working parts of government, are neglected the rust collects. The machinery works poorly. It may break down.

Keep your body working without friction by systematic exercise.

Keep your mind bright by using it.

Keep your soul clean by working it.

And so for society nine-tenths of its evils are caused by the idleness of its necessary working parts.—Chicago Journal.

A Shoe That Altered History.

After the fall of Anne Boleyn the pope prepared overtures of reconciliation so favorable to King Henry VIII that he determined to accept them. A representative was sent from Rome with the dispatches, and when within a day's journey from Calais his horse cast a shoe and fell lame. As it was a favorite, the messenger determined to wait a day that the poor animal might rest and recover. Next day the journey was resumed, but on the day that London was reached Henry had been married to Jane Seymour, a Protestant. Anne had been beheaded, and all hope of reconciliation with the papacy was at an end. The cast shoe had thus changed the bent of English church history.

A Balking Mule.

It is stated on the authority of officers in the Confederate army that a balking mule decided the battle of Gettysburg. The southern and northern troops were both attempting to reach an eminence the position of which practically decided the battle, and the southern column was blocked by a balking mule just long enough to enable the northern troops to gain the eminence, and so that balking mule really decided the battle.

The art of being able to make good use of moderate abilities often confers more reputation than real merit.—Rochefoucauld.

The River Jordan.

Concerning that unique stream, the river Jordan, Dr. Libbey, in "The Jordan Valley and Petra," writes: "Perhaps the strangest thing about this famous river is what none of the ancients ever guessed—that its course was mostly below the level of the sea. They journeyed up and down the valley since before the days of Abraham; they climbed down the roads from Jerusalem to Jericho and up into Moab and Edom; they built roads east and west of the Jordan; they built roads and bridges and cities far below the level of the Mediterranean and yet never seem to have suspected that this stream differed from most of the rivers of the globe in this respect. Greeks, Romans and Mohammedans, Jews, Christians and crusaders knew every nook and cranny of its winding course, but failed to realize that while its head and source rested high on noble Hermon's side its mouth in the Dead sea was far below the surface of the habitable world and all the surrounding oceans."

Calamities That Didn't Occur.

When the first use was made of the natural gas wells people of a certain class were much disturbed. All sorts of evils were predicted, and warning letters were received by the companies in charge. One man sent a caution against boring much into the earth. The world was a hollow sphere, he said, filled with a gaseous substance and floating like a balloon in space. If the gas were allowed to escape disaster would follow. Another, claiming to be a scientific man, assured the owners of a well that any fire coming in contact with the escaping gas would be communicated to the gas beneath and cause terrific explosions. "Men are too inquisitive," he said. "They peer too far. Let them beware." The gas companies have kept on boring, and the world has so far held itself together.

Michael Angelo's Vow.

The story is told, but with no solid foundation, that Raphael had undertaken to decorate the walls of the mansion of Cardinal Farnesina, on the banks of the Tiber, on the condition that no one should see his work until it was completed. Michael Angelo took an oath that he would stop this work. Finding his opportunity when the artist came late to work and disguised as a seller of cakes and wine, he distracted the attention of those round the scaffold that was prepared by offering to them his wares, and, ascending, he drew upon the wall a gigantic head of Jupiter and hurriedly left the building, his vow thus accomplished. When Raphael presently came he instantly exclaimed on seeing the sketch, "Michael Angelo!" and left the palace never to return.

Marriage of the Adriatic.

"The marriage of the Adriatic" was instituted in commemoration of a naval victory, won by Sebastian Ziaui, doge of Venice, over Otto, son of Frederick Barbarossa, 1174. In consequence of this victory Pope Alexander III, who had been driven to take refuge in Venice, gave to the doge the sovereignty of the sea, and every year the doge used to go in grand procession in his state barge and throw a gold ring into the Adriatic, saying, "With this ring I thee wed." Flowers were then thrown into the sea, and the procession returned. The sentence delivered by the doge on the occasion was literally, "Desponsamus te mare nostrum in signum veri perpetueque domini."

Bible Arithmetic.

Ezekiel's reed was nearly eleven feet; a cubit was nearly twenty-two inches; a hand's breadth is equal to three and five-eighths inches; a finger's breadth is equal to a little less than an inch; a shekel of silver was about 2s. 8d.; a shekel of gold was £2; a talent of silver was £400; a talent of gold was nearly £6,000; a piece of silver, or a penny, was 8½d.; a farthing was equal to halfpence; a mite was less than a farthing; a gerah was 1½d.; an ephah, or bath, contained four gallons and five pints; a hin was three quarts and three pints; an omer was six pints; a cab was five pints.—London Globe.

Romance of a Song.

"I'll Hang My Harp on a Willow Tree" has attached to it a bit of royal romance. It was written by a young nobleman who became deeply enamored of Queen Victoria a year or so before she ascended the English throne, which event destroyed his hopes of winning her hand. The words first appeared in an English magazine and were set to music by Wellington Guernsey.

Thin as the Mist.

Scene, a town in the north on a very misty day. Sandy McKay (coming out of a public house and meeting his minister face to face)—Losh, sir, it's an awful deceivin' thing, this mist. D'ye ken (impressively), I wandered in there the noo, thinkin' it was the grocer's?—London Telegraph.

Important.

"John, I simply must have another gown."
"For what occasion?"
"The new cook is coming tomorrow, and I have nothing decent to receive her in."—Cleveland Leader.

acting purchaser can satisfy the most refined taste in this market, without patronizing magazine advertisers for Christmas or New Year gifts. When you buy the articles advertised in the magazines you get something with which the entire country is flooded. When you go from a country town to a city, the salesman does not show you much except the bizarre, the vulgarly expensive, but not really elegant articles. A home dealer who knows you, will show you the things that he is sure will appeal to your especial taste. M'DONALD-WILSON.

Well Known and Popular Brazos County Young Couple Married Here Yesterday.

Mr. W. D. McDonald and Miss Isa Wilson of Edge, were married in this city yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Minkert, Rev. B. B. Hall officiating. Only relatives and a few friends were present to witness the marriage. The bride wore a handsome gray traveling suit. The young couple left soon after the ceremony for Houston to attend the No-Tsu-Oh carnival. The bride is a daughter of Mr. James Wilson, Jr., and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McDonald. Both belong to leading Brazos county families and both are well known and most highly esteemed.

They received numerous handsome wedding gifts, among the latter being a fine 200-acre farm, the gift of the bride's father.

A Large Fraction.

"I see that Johnstone is advertising his goods for sale for a 'fraction of their real value.'"

A Liberal Education. Professor Huxley held this opinion as to what constitutes a liberal education: The man has a liberal education who has been so trained in youth that his body is the ready servant of his will and does with ease and pleasure all the work that as a mechanism it is capable of; whose intellect is a clear, cold, logical engine, with all its parts of equal strength and in smooth working order, ready, like the steam engine, to be turned to any kind of work and spin the gossamers as well as forge the anchors of the mind; whose mind is stored with a knowledge of the great and fundamental truths of nature and of the laws of her operations; one who, no stunted ascetic, is full of life and fire, but whose passions are trained to come to halt by a vigorous will, the servant of a tender conscience; who has learned to love all beauty, whether of nature or of art, to hate all villainess and to respect others as himself. Such a one, and no other, has had a liberal education.

Sacred Keys.

Every person's feelings have a front door and a side door by which they may be entered. The front door is on the street. Some keep it always open, some keep it latched, some locked, some bolted with a chain that will let you peep in, but not get in, and some nail it up, so that nothing can pass its threshold. This front door leads into a passage which opens into an anteroom, and this into the interior apartments. The side door opens at once into the secret chamber. There is almost always one key to the side door. This is carried for years hidden in a mother's bosom. Fathers, brothers, sisters and friends often, but by no means so universally, have duplicates of it. The wedding ring conveys a right to one. Alas, if none is given with it! Be very careful to whom you trust one of these keys of the side door.—O. W. Holmes.

Some Boston Boasts.

"The Hotel Pelham was the first French apartment house, or flat, as they have now come to call them, to be opened in the United States," said an old Bostonian. "At that time the late Dr. Dix, who owned the property, had returned from a European trip, where he got the idea. Upon his return he brought it with him, the Pelham was fitted up in that way, and the idea has continued to spread until it has gone all over the country. Another thing that you may have forgotten is the fact that the Parker House was the first hotel in the United States to be conducted on the European plan. It was in a Boston hotel, the American or the Revere—I forget just which one it was—that the elevator was first introduced."—Boston Record.

The Echoes of Eagle's Nest.

The most wonderful echo in the known world is that heard from the Eagle's Nest in the lake regions of Ireland. The rock known as "Eagle's Nest" is the most prominent peak to be found among the heights that surround the Killarney lakes. Its apex is 1,250 feet above the surface of the water, and the extraordinary echo is heard to the best advantage from a spot 100 feet to the west from an opening called the Devil's mouth. At that point the effect of the re-echoed sounds is absolutely startling, the slightest whisper being repeated as often as 1,000 times. The rebound is always clear and distinct and appears to come from the crags, cliffs and peaks which surround the experimenter on all sides.

Expected the Usual Results.

At provincial theaters in France when opera is given it is not uncommon for untried tenors to submit themselves to the public judgment, which is usually hostile. One of these obscure songsters presented himself and sung the first act. He did not make a "hit." He retired to his dressing room, took off his makeup and was preparing to go home when the manager appeared. "What!" he cried. "You are not dressed for the second act, and the curtain is just going up! Thousand thunders!" "The second act?" said the tenor placidly. "I cannot sing the second act. I don't know the second act. Whenever I sing I am always kicked out after the first!"

W. J. COULTER IN ST. LOUIS.

W. J. Coulter left Saturday night for St. Louis to attend the Big Five Special Sales inaugurated by the five largest dry goods houses of that city for the week of Nov. 13 to Nov. 18, which have been widely advertised throughout the country. The houses have heretofore held their great wholesale special sales on different dates, but this year, in order to give visiting merchants the advantage of the largest assortments and keenest competition, the sales are all being conducted on the same dates. Coulter is on the ground with the cash to secure some big drives in odds and ends and goods of all kinds for his big special sale now in full blast, and by far the greatest sale he has ever had. These goods will be here in a few days; meanwhile his present stock is by no means depleted, and the crowds, which have thronged the store since the beginning of the sale, are still coming. Sale lasts until Dec. 1.

IS NOT IMPORTED.

THE FINEST THINGS IN CUT GLASS ARE OF AMERICAN MAKE.

The Eagle Reporter Learns Something by Asking a Lot of Questions.

"Are these cut glass goods imported also?"

The Eagle reporter asked this question of Mr. Ettle, at M. H. James' Drug Store. The reporter had been looking over some queer packages of goods in James' warehouse—imported hand painted Chinas, some from the Orient, and some from Vienna in Austria. Very expensive imported wares come to this country as ordinary freight, and are delivered to the interior merchants by freight shipments. They are subject to rough handling. You see in M. H. James' warehouse a lot of packages done up in coarse, soft straw, and to all appearances, one of them looks like a little bale of grass. You can knock it over on the floor and bump it around a whole lot, and the costly, fragile wares inside will not be injured.

To the reporter's query with which this article opens, Mr. Ettle replied:

"No sir, cut glass is one branch of fine goods manufacture in which Americans have the Europeans skinned a city block. The finest cut glass is all of American make. Imported cut glass is bought only for its cheapness in price. We have some of it in stock, but it is that cheaper looking stuff over there.

"We refer to our 'genuine imported' Chinas, but in speaking of cut glass, we say 'genuine American' goods.

"We have hand painted Oriental Chinas here," continued Mr. Ettle, "that have never been opened since they were packed by the artists and collectors in Eastern Europe and in Asia. Each piece bears the signature of the artist who executed it. When bought direct, without passing through the hands of American dealers, these goods can be sold cheaper to our customers.

"Our success in handling these goods in a limited way in the past, has induced us to buy more heavily this year, and we have some very expensive pieces, and also some exceedingly artistic and elegant stuff at very moderate prices."

Mr. Ettle was very busy getting Mr. James' display of cut glass ready for exhibition this week. Cut glass is a staple article, and it is in order to keep it on display at all seasons. The fine wares and other goods intended for Christmas trade will not go on exhibition just yet.

"Show me," said the reporter to Mr. James, "some of the very swellest, most correct, and elegant things you will have on sale suitable for holiday gifts."

"Sorry, but cannot do it now," replied the proprietor. "There are are lots of folks wanting to get an advance peep at some of our treasures, but they are so carefully packed away, (such as have come in) and it would be so much labor to begin opening them up prematurely, that we cannot afford to grant your request.

"By the way, I can, however, give you a squint at just one line of articles that I consider will be very popular when the ladies see them.

"You know Ricksecker's perfumes are said to be the finest creations now, in that line. Well, we have some of these in cut glass bottles. The bottles come in plush cases, and the whole outfit is something highly artistic, as well as being articles of utility. These articles will make very elegant presents."

One or two of them shown to the Eagle reporter were indeed beautiful.

"Another thing of this kind is our very fine line of box stationery," said Mr. James. "We will have the most attractive goods in this line we have ever carried. They go up as high as $4.00 and $5.00 a box. We have found a strong demand for something really elegant in this line for presents."

After looking a while longer at the great array of crated goods with foreign, New York and New England labels on them, the Eagle man quit Mr. James' place with the impression that Bryan is getting to be indeed a swell little city. With such immense quantities of high class goods, bought months in advance from some of the best markets in the world, and ranging from the most expensive articles to those of moderate price, it is easy to see that the most ex-

CROUP

Croup and inflammation of the larynx are instantly relieved and permanently cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. This never failing prescription of an eminent physician was given the name of ONE MINUTE COUGH CURE because instant relief has always followed its use. It takes effect at the seat of the trouble and acts on the inflamed membranes instead of passing wholly into the stomach and drugging or stupefying the system. Gives relief instantly.

CURED

It destroys the disease germ, clears the phlegm and draws out the inflammation, thus removing the cause and curing permanently. One Minute Cough Cure is perfectly harmless, good for children and they like its taste. Prepared only by E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. An ideal remedy for children. Do not forget the name.

The Theban Sphinx.

The Theban sphinx was said to be a monster sent by Juno to lay waste the country around Thebes. It had the head and bust of a woman, the body of a lion and a human voice. It at once became the terror of the neighborhood and devoured all who could not solve the riddle which it propounded. "What animal walks on four legs in the morning, two at noon and three at night?" Oedipus, attracted by the promise of King Creon of his crown and his sister in marriage, came to Thebes and declared that man goes on all fours in infancy, erect on two legs when upgrown and supports the infirmities of age with a staff. On hearing this correct solution the sphinx dashed her head against a wall, and the land had rest.

The Work of the Heart.

One of the most remarkable things about the heart is the amount of work it does. Considering the organ as a pump whose task is to deliver a known quantity of blood against a known "head," it is easy to show that in twenty-four hours a man's heart does about 124 foot tons of work. "In other words," says a contemporary, "if the whole force expended by the heart in twenty-four hours were gathered into one huge stroke, such a power would lift 124 tons one foot from the ground. A similar calculation has been made respecting the amount of work expended by the muscles involved in breathing. In twenty-four hours these muscles do about twenty-one foot tons of work."

A Chinese Custom.

A quaint custom practiced by Chinese mothers when a child is restless and does not sleep is to write the following verse and pin a copy of it on each of the four corners of the house, that the passersby may read and the child find rest. Literally translated the verse reads:

Brilliant sparkling heaven,
Brilliant sparkling earth,
In my house there is a child who cries at night.
The gentlemen coming from the four quarters behold
Peaceful sleep till break of day.

Strange Condition.

A negro woman was heard to remark that she "was going to build a condition to her residence so as she could ascertain her friends wid' mo hostility."

She was "going to have a purgatory on top of the house and a memorandum all lit up wid' indecent light for 'em to lemond on."—Memphis Scimitar.

Read Your Letter Again.

Never mail a letter written at night until it has been reread in the morning. You may materially reduce the number of your correspondents by persisting in this course, but you will gain in reputation for prudence and common sense. What seems philosophy by candlelight is but folly by day, and the brilliancy of night lacks sparkle in the morning.

Personal.

"Do you really maintain that there exist dogs who are more intelligent than their masters?"

"Certainly. Such clever animals are rare, but I've got a pointer—what are all you chaps laughing about?"

The first and most important quality of woman is sweetness.—J. J. Rousseau.

The Drummer's Furlough.

Countless drummer boys have swelled the rolls of heroic deeds, and the heart of many a stern officer has been moved to pity for the childish drummers in his regiment. In the critical days of the civil war an order was issued that under no circumstances should a furlough be granted. Just then "General Scott," a drummer boy, aged thirteen, a terribly homesick and hungry for a bit of his mother.

Poor little General Scott! He had been in many battles, always obedient and fearless. But he was beaten at last. His lip quivered and his eyes filled with tears.

The bandmaster wrote out a brief statement of the case, but carefully avoided asking for a furlough, and sent General Scott with it up the line of officers. Generals Comly, Hayes and Crook each added a line, and then it was laid before Sheridan.

"No furlough can be granted," wrote the hero of Winchester, "but General Scott is hereby ordered to repair to his mother and to report again at headquarters in thirty days." Thus it was that one drummer boy went home on duty.—Youth's Companion.

Tinted Lungs.

One of the exhibits in an English anatomical museum is a collection of three lungs preserved in alcohol. On one hand is an exhibit almost pure white, while the third is jet black, the one between being a dirty gray.

The first was taken from an Eskimo who all his life had inhaled the pure air of his northern home. The black was taken from a miner who had spent years in the production of coal. The third was from the body of a London man, and the tint was produced by the inhalation of the soot carried in the air.

It is a certain fact that the lungs of the miner were in a more healthy state than those of the city dweller, since the grit in his tissues was pure coal dust, while the discoloration of the other was due not alone to soot, but to the dust of a city's streets composed of a thousand and one deleterious elements.

The Skipper's Comment.

A burly, thick headed skipper had been given the command of a little steam collier. Going up with great pride on to the bridge of his new ship, the first thing that caught his eye was the engine room telegraph. "What's that for?" he demanded. "Avhy, that goes down to the engine room," was the reply. "You see all the orders on it—'Full speed,' 'Half,' 'Slow,' 'Stop.' You just have to move the handle." The old man was charmed. "If I put the handle to 'Full,' will she gang full speed?" "Why, certainly." "An' if I put the handle to 'Stop,' will she stop gangin'?" "Certainly." The old man was still more charmed. Finally, after thinking some time, he heaved a great sigh of pleasure. "Why, that's fine, man! That's clever! That does away with all them saucy imps o' engineers!"

The Drum.

The history of the drum goes back to the childhood of the world. The Greeks ascribe its invention to Bacchus. The Egyptians had it at least 1,600 years before Christ. Pizarro found drums in South American temples. The snakes of Ireland, we are told, fled from the island before the drumbeats of St. Patrick. Our Puritan ancestors used the drum as a church bell. When Sir Edmund Andros ordered the drums to "strike up" to drown the voice of protesting colonists, the lights in the Hartford council chamber went out and the charter of Connecticut disappeared in the darkness to the safer shade of the Charter oak.—Youth's Companion.

The Dog and His Master.

Men and women are very much like clocks. Some are always on time, some are never on time, some are always in order, some are never in order. And, while you may be able to tell something of a family by its timepiece, you can tell more by the nature of the dog that greets you at the gate. A dog grows up after the fashion of its master or its mistress; a kind gentleman will not have an ugly brute on his place.—Exchange.

Less Than Cost.

"But," protested the broker who had advertised for a confidential clerk, "you want too much salary." "I've had a great deal of experience in the brokerage business," urged the applicant. "But you ask too much for it." "My dear sir, I assure you I'm offering it to you for much less than it cost me."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Faithful Servant.

One night Prince Tillyrand was suddenly awakened by the firing of a pistol, and, seeing his valet walking about the room, he asked him what he was doing.

"There was a mouse in the room, your highness, and for fear it might disturb you I shot it."

His Exact Statement.

Author—Is it true that you say my latest is the worst book I ever wrote? Critical Acquaintance—Nonsense, my dear fellow. What I said was that it was the worst book anybody ever wrote—not you in particular.

The Growler.

There is nothing easier to acquire than a fretful, complaining spirit. It is a foolish habit to borrow trouble or meet it halfway. Cultivate a cheerful mind and heart, and much imaginary trouble can be avoided.

English.

"It's funny."
"What's funny?"
"That you can never tell whether a woman has a good carriage till you have seen her walk."—Exchange.

The Invincible Armada.

The invincible armada was a famous naval expedition sent by Philip II. of Spain against England in 1588. It consisted of 130 vessels, 2,430 great guns, 4,575 quintals of powder, nearly 20,000 soldiers, above 8,000 sailors and more than 2,000 volunteers. It arrived in the English channel on July 19 and was defeated the next day by Admiral Howard, who was seconded by Drake, Hawkins and Frobisher. Eight fire-ships having been sent into the Spanish fleet, they bore off in great disorder. Profiting by the panic, the English fell upon them and captured or destroyed a number of their ships, and Admiral Howard maintained a running fight from July 21 to July 27, with such effect that the Spanish commander, despairing of success, resolved to return home, and as escape through the English channel was prevented by contrary winds he undertook to sail around the Orkneys, but the vessels which still remained to him were dispersed by storms or shipwrecked among the rocks and shallows on different parts of the Scottish and Irish coast, and upward of 5,000 men were drowned, killed or taken prisoners. Of the whole armada fifty-three ships only returned to Spain and these in a wretched condition. The English lost but one ship.

The Maroons.

The Maroons were the descendants of African slaves, brought to Jamaica by the Spaniards. During the conquest of Jamaica by the English the Maroons, deserted by their masters, fled to the mountain fastnesses, where they lived a fierce, wild life. Increasing daily in number by the many deserting slaves, the Maroons soon became formidable to their white neighbors, whom they plundered and killed. In 1738 an agreement was made which secured to them an independence, which they maintained for 140 years, but the English finally determined to exterminate them and for this purpose pursued them barbarously with bloodhounds. Hemmed in on every side and hunted down, they were compelled to submit, and only 600 escaped, who were transported to the bleak shores of Nova Scotia, where they perished miserably.

The Sunday Stone.

The "Sunday stone" of the Oxford museum was taken from a colliery drain and is a perfect calendar of Sundays and holidays. It is composed of carbonate of lime. When miners were at work, the water running through the drain left a black deposit colored by coal dust. At other times the water ran clear, leaving the stone deposit white. In course of time these black and white layers formed a stone of considerable thickness, which constitutes a very complete calendar. Each day of work has as its record a black streak, followed by a white streak, which marks the hours of rest at night. Wider white streaks mark the Sundays and whole holidays, and thus it has taken its name as the "Sunday stone."—London Mail.

Rossini's Memory.

Rossini's memory was lacking in retentiveness, especially in respect to the names of persons who had been introduced to him. This forgetfulness was frequently a cause of amusement whenever Rossini was among company. One day he met Bishop, the English composer. Rossini knew the face well enough and at once greeted him. "Ah, my dear Mr.—" but the name escaped his memory, and to convince him that he had not forgotten him Rossini began whistling Bishop's glee, "When the Wind Blows," a compliment which "the English Mozart," as Bishop had been dubbed, recognized quite as readily as if his ecclesiastical surname had been mentioned.

A Mob.

A mob is usually a creature of very mysterious existence, particularly in a large city. Where it comes from or whither it goes few men can tell. Assembling and dispersing with equal suddenness, it is as difficult to follow to its various sources as the sea itself, nor does the parallel stop here, for the ocean is not more fickle and uncertain, more terrible when aroused, more unreasonable or more cruel.—Dickens.

Choosing a Wife.

The plainest features become handsome unawares when associated only with kind feelings and the loveliest face disagreeable when linked with ill humor or caprice. People should remember this when they are selecting a face which they are to see every morning across the breakfast table for the remainder of their lives.—N. P. Willis.

Real Enjoyment.

"Yes, you can spend the day at grandpa's, but be a good boy or your papa will whip you."

"Yes'm."

"I don't see how you get so much enjoyment out of talking to grandpa."

"I get him to tell me about the licks he used to give pop."—Houston Post.

Sympathetic Courtesy.

He who can put real human sympathy into the conventional phrases of courtesy is indeed a man of tact.

Le Rire represents a dentist's servant opening the door to a patient. "And whom, sir," asks the servant, bowing low, "shall I have the misery of announcing?"

An Excuse.

Patience—What reason had she for marrying him? Patrice—Why, he had money. Patience—That is not a reason; that's an excuse.

Air is to the body what coal is to the furnace. The deeper the breathing the more drafts are turned on and the brighter life burns.
